

Devon Tower

The Devon Tower is a staple to OKC life. To some non Oklahoma natives, Devon is the only real sky scraper in OKC. Jon Pickard was the architect in 2009 till the completion in 2012. The first time I was able to be in the building, I was fortunate enough to go all the way to the top floor. Just being able to marvel in such a huge engineering feat is absolutely spectacular. When no other buildings around it currently block much of your view from the fifty second floor the view at sunset can be breath taking.