

Dulles International Airport

This is yet another airport designed by Eero Saarinen. This structure is very unique because of its curved roof and its angular standing. The building is definitely eye catching and has Saarinen's futuristic design aspects all over it. The structure has an otherworldly feeling.

This graceful shape sweeps upward, almost as if it is suggesting a swooping flight of an airplane. These little details in design really make me happy because the artist is evoking a certain feeling or emotion from those who enter the building. This building suggests a sense of excitement and wonder of flight.
