

The Getty, Los Angeles

One of the top wonders of the world when it comes to museums. I did not know this before I went. I appreciate in more now that I know this. I want to go back soon! When I went here during winter break, the things that I remember the most was the building and the central garden. Studying Environmental Studies drew me more to the garden part of the museum. The architecture of the building is very impressive. But I will still say the flow of the water formations, flower arrangements, and their overall landscape gave more definition to the building and drew me to the building and museum. Having a beautiful landscape is a nice compliment to any structure and honestly a very important part of architecture.

Post #5-Bryce Lewis